

62 AW/CC Roll Call

8 Aug 2014

Team McChord,

Earlier this week, many of our Team McChord leaders were fortunate to meet with renowned author and leadership expert, Mr. Simon Sinek. If you've never had a chance to read or hear his words, I highly recommend you take some time to watch his TED Talks—they are worth the time. During his discussion with us, he spoke of the importance of making connections and building relationships. As Chief Drake and I walk around McChord Field, we frequently see the power that connections make every day. Watching a C-17 fly overhead, welcoming deployers as they come home, caring for Airmen when they're sick, or turning wrenches in one of our many backshops—each of us plays a critical role in making our Global Reach mission happen. These connections also help us build the synergy and trust that make our relationships with our mission partners stronger and more resilient. Whether it's a rainbow active duty and reserve crew on a mission or Soldiers and Airmen training as a joint team, the work we do together makes our AF and our nation stronger. Let's keep making those connections to our jobs, to our mission and to one another!
